

At night, when the temperature in the room decreases the heast stored in the wall (thermal mass) radiates into the room

